

“Inclusive Education: The Way of the Future”

Diane Richler, President of Inclusion International, was a speaker at the International Conference on Education held in Geneva in November 2008. She was representing the non-government (NGO) sector. The conference theme was “inclusive education” and was attended by Ministers of Education and senior officials from dozens of countries from every region of the world. Diane’s address provides a clear statement on why inclusive education is important, and answers several key questions on what it will take to move ahead. Diane Richler lives in Toronto and is a former Executive Vice President of The Canadian Association for Community Living. She was a co-editor of Changing Canadian Schools and is a member for the Order of Canada. She is currently serving a second 4-year term as President of Inclusion International.
